TWO MORE TIMELESS CLASSICS FROM EVERYONE'S FAVOURITE DOCTOR

Doctor Who - a legend in his own time zone - and BBC Video celebrate his 30th Anniversary Year with the release of two more adventures - DOCTOR WHO - TERROR OF THE AUTONS and DOCTOR WHO - SILVER NEMESIS and THE MAKING OF SILVER NEMESIS.

Starring Jon Pertwee as the Doctor, TERROR OF THE AUTONS was originally transmitted in January 1971. It is the second Doctor Who title to be colourised using a 'paintbox' special effects unit, ultimately adding a whole new dimension to the original black and white footage.

The evil Master is behind a plot that threatens to destroy humanity and silence the Doctor for ever! His plan? To awaken the awesome power of the Nestene - a ruthlessly aggressive alien life form. Once mixed with plastic they form destructive faceless automatons and only the Doctor is able to combat their evil power, but first he must defeat the Master.

Transmitted in November 1988, SILVER NEMESIS starred Sylvester McCoy as the Doctor. The video includes additional previously untransmitted material and behind the scenes production information - The Making Of Silver Nemesis.

It is 23rd November 1988. Lady Peinforte and her loyal servant Richard have travelled from the year 1638 for this moment, whilst Herr De Flores' dreams of establishing the Fourth Reich also rest on this point in time. To make matters worse the Cybermen's planned invasion of Earth is scheduled to take place on this date. The link between these three events is the statue of Nemesis, formed from a substance called validium, capable of bestowing the powers of life and death on any individual. It is up to the Doctor and his assistant Ace to prevent its evil powers from falling into enemy hands!

The Making Of Doctor Who: Silver Nemesis offers a unique opportunity to gain an insider's view of the making of a Doctor Who programme, enrolling you as a member of the production team. There are interviews with Sylvester McCoy and Sophie Aldred, the Producer, John Nathan-Turner and the technical staff including makeup, costume and visual effects designers.

SILVER NEMESIS

By Kevin Clarke

Starring Sylvester McCoy

Originally transmitted 23rd November - 7th December 1988.

This version contains additional previously untransmitted material.

"You mean, the world's going to end and you'd forgotten about it?"

"I've been busy."

"How long have you known?"

"Well, in strictly linear terms, as the chronometer flies, I've known since November 23rd 1638."

It is 23rd November 1988. Lady Peinforte and her loyal servant Richard have travelled from the year 1638 for this moment. Herr De Flores' dreams of establishing the Fourth Reich rest on this point in time. The Cybermen's planned invasion of Earth is scheduled for the same time. The link between the three? The statue Nemesis, fashioned from validium - the living metal first made by Rassilon on Gallifrey and capable of bestowing the power of life and death on any individual. Can the Doctor and Ace prevent its awesome power from falling into any of their evil hands?
